

Male Research Participants Needed!

My name is Emma Ferguson and I am a Trainee Clinical Psychologist. I am doing a research study looking at the experiences of men aged 18-60 whose wives or partners have had a brain injury. I'd like to ask for your help...

If you are interested, I'd like to meet with you to talk about your experiences since your wife or partner's brain injury. We can find a quiet, private place to talk and our conversation will be confidential.

Currently there is little research exploring the experiences of men in this area. I hope my research will help me and other health professionals to better understand how men adjust to changes in their relationships with their wives or partners, and how we can work more effectively with couples and families.
